Stewardship Corner

Stewardship Reward:

Colossians 3:23-24. Paul writes "Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for men, since you know that you will receive an inheritance from the Lord as a reward. It is the Lord Christ you are serving." As stewards of what has been provided to us by God, we are excited to expand his Kingdom while here on earth by using His given resources wisely and freely. Our reward is not now on this earth, but later in Heaven. We all should long to hear Him say what he exclaims in Matthew 25:21 "Well done, good and faithful servant! You have been faithful with a few things; I will put you in charge of many things. Come and share your master's happiness!"

"Wealth shines in giving rather than hoarding: for the miser is hateful, whereas the generous man is applauded." Boethius (480-524), Roman statesman and Christian martyr.

Hospital List

Please let Highland's office know if you or a family member are in the hospital. Most of the local hospitals no longer notify Highland due to new HIPAA privacy law interpretations.

What Worship Means to Me - Evelyn Audi Lisi

Whenever I think about my faith and its foundations, the first image is that of my childhood church home, First Plymouth Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, in Lincoln, NE. This beautiful church still stands with a grand bell tower which distinguished it among neighboring churches and in the residential neighborhood surrounding it. It has been almost 20 years since I have been to First Plymouth, but still I can see almost its every corner.

Church came to be a comfort, and a place of solace. Worship became such an important piece of my faith journey. My sister, brother, and I often attended the worship service with my parents. (This was actually our preference to Sunday school unless my mother was teaching). The music was wonderful, organ and choir, and the music was my favorite part of the service. I loved hearing the organ preludes and postludes, singing hymns from the blue Plymouth Hymnals, and listening to the choir.

My faith was solidified sitting in the pews with my family on those crushed red velvety cushions. Singing hymns alongside my parents, elbowing my siblings and sometimes getting into fits of giggles, looking around at the sanctuary and memorizing every face in the choir, every light that hung down from a grand ceiling, and ultimately even memorizing The Lord's Prayer, all come together as the first memories of what being a Christian meant. It meant praying, passing the big brass colored offering plates, being so hungry that I couldn't wait until I was old enough to participate in communion (this was long before the days of carrying snack containers filled with goldfish crackers everywhere.) Even as wiggly as we were sometimes, my memories of church worship are not of being bored, although I do remember coloring in my church bulletin with the pew pencils as I listened to the scripture and sermon. Yet, how glorious these memories came to be as I grew up enough to understand the words, to consider them, to have questions that I wrote down when I was old enough to write. The organ, the brass, the voices of the choir and the congregation, those little cards in front of me in the pews, these are all gloriously comforting reminders of my first church memories.
